

SKIN CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

There are many forms of skin cancer, including basal cell carcinoma and squamous cell carcinoma, but the most serious form of skin cancer is melanoma. This year alone, almost 100,000 people in the United States will be diagnosed with melanoma.

There are some important steps you can do to help minimize your risk for developing this potentially deadly form of skin cancer:

- 1
- 2
- 3

Limit your exposure to UV light.

Wear a broad-spectrum sunscreen daily (spf 30 or higher) and reapply every two hours or after coming out of the water. Sun protective clothing like shirts, hats and sunglasses are helpful!

Examine your moles at home for changes. Look at your skin in a mirror, including your back, legs, and scalp. Help other family members do the same.

Get skin examination by a dermatologist. Sometimes it's not easy to know what is normal or abnormal. Please schedule a screening skin check to make sure you have an understanding of your baseline skin status. Early diagnosis and treatment for skin cancer makes all the difference! Dr. Hicks-Graham, Jana Shaffer, PA-C, and Amy Lipp, PA-C are taking appointments for skin checks daily, so don't wait any longer.
